

Functional clothing cools with superabsorber fleece

Water molecules are firmly incorporated in the network of the nonwoven structure. They evaporate when exposed to heat and thereby cool the body.

