

Sustainability News

Dear subscribers,

"Climate protection is a key task for me." These were the words of BASF's Chairman of the Board of Executive Directors, Martin Brudermüller during a meeting of the "Alliance of CEO Climate Leaders" in Geneva on August 24, 2018. His participation reflects the importance of global cooperation for climate protection and sustainable development – both fundamental changes that can only be achieved through partnerships between governments, companies and organizations.

At the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) Leaders Summit on September 24, 2018, BASF was recognized for its continuing involvement and commitment to the UNGC and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as a UN Global Compact LEAD company. Saori Dubourg, Member of the Board of Executive Directors, participated in the CEO Roundtable where stakeholders from business, government and civil society discussed how they can further collaborate to drive attitudes and actions towards the achievement of the SDGs. The UN Global Compact SDG Pioneer recognition was accepted by Teresa Szelest, President, Market and Business Development North America, on behalf of BASF.

In this newsletter you can also find out how BASF's international partnerships and projects support change towards sustainable development. Whether mitigating aflatoxin in Tanzania's food chain, providing clean water in India or creating job opportunities for painters in Brazil – the cooperations are as diverse as the regions.
